

[Summer Vacation ]

At the end of the summer vacation in America, schools often have an “open house”, which both students and parents attend. During this time, the teachers will explain what will happen during the next school year. Around this time in England, many stores will be selling school uniforms. They use the slogan, “Back to School” in shop windows. Most children dread going shopping for their uniforms with their parents.